Mortgage subsidy proposal studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's economic plan will include a new program of subsidies to reduce the cost of home mortgages, administration sources say.

The effect will be to make it possible for people to obtain home mortgages at a lower interest rate than they otherwise would have to pay.

Housing and Urban Affairs Secretary James T. Lynn said he could support a program of up to $8 billion in mortgage subsidies, with $3 billion to be spent in the first stage.

Economic summit wrapped up today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's economic summit nears its wrap-up with Ford having heard as much criticism as praise, and more special pleading than disinterested advice.

At Friday's opening session, Ford heard blunt advice that he come up with new policies and a fresh economic team. Easing some of the sting of criticism from Democrats, labor, young people, women, the poor, and consumer representatives were occasional expressions of thanks that the President had taken the trouble to hold the summit and participate personally.

By and large, Ford sat through presentations by representatives of special interest groups who tended to view the nation's grave economic problems in terms of the plight of their own constituencies.

Rep. Sam Devine, R-Ohio, observed at one point, "Everyone wants to exercise economy in every program except his own."

Carol Foreman, feisty executive director of the Consumer Federation of America, told the President she went to a presummit conference on natural resources thinking the objective was to find ways to lower prices, but discovering, as she saw it, that fellow conferees wanted to raise prices for natural gas, oil or whatever interest they happened to represent.

Portugal power struggle eyed

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — President Antonio de Spinola buckled under strong leftist pressure and called off a mass demonstration by his supporters today.

It was the first test of force between left and right since the April 25 coup, and the left appeared to have carried the day.

Spinola said the demonstration, aimed at "leftist extremists," would "not be convenient" because of "disturbances in public order earlier today."

The left, with the Communists in the forefront, had issued a call to their followers "to take to the streets to prevent the Fascist demonstration."

Thousands of Portuguese from rural areas and suburbs of Lisbon poured into the capital despite militant leftist attempts to isolate the capital with roadblocks.

Tanks and armored units ringed the presidential palace where the demonstration was scheduled to be held.

The army was reported to have arrested scores of persons, including some identified as extreme rightists apparently trying to carry arms to the rally.

Commandos from the capital's

Lynn indicated to newsmen at the economic summit conference Friday he favored such a program, but stopped short of predicting it would be recommended by the administration.

An informed source, however, confirmed such a program was in the works to aid the depressed housing industry and to encourage homebuying.

The housing industry has been hard-hit by the record high interest rates in the economy which have discouraged both home-building and homebuying.

Housing starts in August were only slightly more than half the total of a year earlier.

Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., told the economic summit conference Friday he favored a mortgage subsidy program of $10 billion, with $5 billion for new housing and $5 billion for old housing. He said it would support 350,000 homes.

The program being considered by the administration would be known as a tandem program.

A home buyer would obtain a mortgage at an interest rate below the going rate. The federal government then would buy the mortgage from the issuer, such as a savings and loan association, at the higher rate.

Lynn noted that a similar program for $3 billion was put into operation earlier this year, and the money was used up in two months.

A bill has been introduced in the Senate for the same kind of program, but Lynn said it lacks the flexibility that the administration wants.

It was learned elsewhere that Lynn has asked the Senate sponsors to delay action on their bill until the administration version is ready.

Lynn told newsmen that he should have the authority in a tandem program to make the subsidies available if interest rates stayed high and to suspend them if they began falling.

But he warned against expectations that such a program, or any other emergency support for housing, would turn the industry around from its depressed state this year.

Auto parts strike idling thousands

DETROIT (AP) — Strikes affecting all four major U.S. auto makers are crippling production and prompting layoffs of thousands of workers.

General Motors faces a parts shortage stemming from a local contract dispute, and American Motors Corp.'s car production is shutdown by a national strike. Ford has already shut down plants, and Chrysler plans to because of a walkout at a key parts supplier.

Potentially, the most serious is a strike at a key parts-making complex in Indiana which threatens to cause a shutdown of all GM assembly facilities within a week.

The strike, by 14,000 members of United Auto Workers Union Local 662 at GM's 14 Delco-Remy plants in Anderson, Ind., entered its third day today.

Union officials reported progress in substantially reducing the number of issues in the local contract dispute. Remaining issues were not revealed.

The plant is GM's sole supplier of generators, ignition systems and a variety of switches.

Company spokesmen said a lengthy strike could force a gradual closing of GM's 117 plants beginning early next week. The auto maker employs 400,000 hourly workers.

Meanwhile, Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. said they will have a total of nine plants shut down and nearly 25,000 workers laid off because of a strike at a key parts supplier in Franklin, Ind.

The strike by the Carpenters and Joiners Union Local 2993 at Arvin Industries has created a shortage of catalytic converters for pollution control and exhaust systems for Ford and Chrysler.

Union officials said a tentative agreement on a new contract was reached and striking workers in Franklin were to vote on the proposals Sunday.

Ford said it will lay off 6,350 workers Monday when it shuts its truck plants in Wayne, Mich., and Oakville, Ont., and car plants in Louisville, Ky., and Mahwah, N.J. Ford sent 9,800 workers home Friday after closing plants in Dearborn, Mich., Norfolk, Va., and San Jose, Calif.

DP&L's natural gas allotment
cut 14 per cent

The Dayton Power and Light Co. announced today that its natural gas deliveries for the 1974-75 heating season will be curtailed 14 per cent by its suppliers. This compares with a two per cent curtailment last winter. The heating season is the five-month period between October 20 and March 20.

Part of this deficiency will be made up with synthetic gas DP&L is receiving from a reforming plant at Green Springs, Ohio. With this level of curtailment DP&L expects some difficulty in meeting the gas needs of all customers this winter. The shortage during this five month period will require curtailment of natural gas during certain periods to large industrial and commercial consumers.

Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc., DP&L's supplier, has indicated that this level of curtailment is subject to change, depending upon the gas supply situation.

Rain spots eastern half of nation

The Associated Press

Showers spotted the eastern half of the nation and strong winds blew through New Mexico and Oklahoma. But the rest of the nation had generally clear skies today.

Wind gusts up to 80 miles per hour hit Clovis, N.M., and a house reportedly was blown away near the Texas border.

An area 80 miles north of Kansas City was soaked in almost an inch of rain and pea-size hail that fell within 25 minutes.

Rain and thunderstorms were scattered from Minnesota southward into the Texas Panhandle, and from western New York and Michigan down to the Gulf Coast.

Dense fog cuddled New England.

Snow was expected to continue in the higher Rockies, although it slackened on the eastern slopes and in Colorado.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 28 at Bismarck and Grand Forks, N.D., to 84 at Key West, Fla., and Blythe, Calif.

Estes favored as GM chief

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — A moustached engineer who has helped General Motors design and sell automobiles since he was 18 is the odds-on favorite to become president of the world's largest manufacturer next week.

On Monday, when members of GM's board of directors emerge from special session in New York, auto observers are betting that Executive Vice President Elliott M. "Pete" Estes, 58, will be the man named to succeed retiring Edward Cole.

Estes' closest competition for the presidency comes from Richard L. Terrell, 55, also an executive vice president, who has been with GM for 37 years.

At that same meeting, the directors may name a new chairman to succeed

Richard C. Gerstenberg, who retires in November. Vice Chairman Thomas A.

Murphy is expected to be moved up to the top spot.

Cole, who became president in 1967, and Gerstenberg, chairman since 1972, are stepping down under the company's mandatory retirement at age 65 policy.

Estes, one of three senior vice presidents who occupy the second rung of the GM hierarchy, is favored in the presidential sweepstakes because he has extensive background in GM's bread-and-butter automotive divisions.

Terrell, by contrast, rose through the nonautomotive ranks in GM's Electro-Motive and Frigidaire divisions.

GM's third executive vice president, Oscar A. Lundin, one of the firm's top financial officers, is considered an outside shot for the presidency, principally because of his age. Lundin turns 64 in November, and thus would be forced to retire in 14 months.

Murphy, now 58, became chairman-heir apparent in 1972, when as a vice president he was catapulted over several higher-ranking officers to the vice chairmanship, a post previously occupied by Gerstenberg.

But trying to call the succession sweepstakes at GM is a risky business. Auto watchers caution that the directors, who include some of the top corporate officers in the nation, can be unpredictable in naming new chief officers.

Estes' career at GM parallels that of Cole, a highly respected engineer who has been GM's chief proponent of developments such

Farmers may prove their wheat yield

Farmers may, if they choose, prove their wheat yield per acre rather than accept the yield which was established by the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee on a judgment basis.

This is one of the basic provisions under the new Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973, according to George C. Speakman, chairman of the Fayette County ASC Committee. In order to prove yield for use in the 1975 wheat program, a farmer must have harvested wheat each year in 1969, 1970, 1971, 1972 and 1973 and provide reliable evidence of the amount of production from the harvested acreage.

If you intend to prove your yield in subsequent years, current year production evidence must be submitted along with evidence for the most recent year of the base period.

To prove wheat yields for use in the 1975 program, a producer must file a request at the county ASCS office by October 4. "Acceptable evidence is limited to bin measurements, sales or warehouse receipts and summarization of receipts, or scale tickets from warehouses or scales used by the general public," Speakman said.

Livestock production level rises

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government food experts say beef production will rise to a record level next month as farmers and ranchers ship an increasing number of cows and grassfed cattle to market.

The Agriculture Department said Monday in another of its "food marketing alert" bulletins to retailers and other bigvolume wholesale buyers that October pork supplies will reach a seasonal peak.

Meanwhile, another USDA report indicated farm prices of cattle and hogs slipped in early September but that middlemen who process and sell beef and pork widened their share of the consumer meat dollar.

For the week that ended Sept. 7, the department said retail beef prices on

Deadline is Sept. 30 for wheat insurance

Area farmers are reminded that September 30th is the final date applications will be accepted for wheat insurance on the 1975 wheat crop.

Officials said the farmer's share of the retail price of pork was 64 cents per pound, down 1.6 cents from a week earlier. But the margin between producers and consumers increased to 46.2 cents per pound from 43.8 the week before.

Thus, although the farm equivalent price of pork went down slightly, a boost of 2.4 cents in middlemen shares more than offset the decline.

The report said the price of live choice steer during the week ended Sept. 7 was estimated at an average of $42.86 per 100 pounds, down from $45.94 the week before. Slaughter hogs at major markets were said to average $36.73 per hundredweight, down from $37.78 the previous week.

In its October food marketing outlook report, USDA said pork supplies are reaching a season peak this fall and

For 1975 the wheat bushel guarantees have been increased, as have the price selections, the price a farmer receives for each bushel his crop falls below his guarantee.

Next year's corn bushel guarantees are being increased in most counties also, with a higher price selection in every county, providing substantially higher protection.

Changes in the soybean program provide for adjustment in moisture and damage which give increased protection when the soybean quality is reduced by adverse conditions.

With the tremendous investment required in farming today, more large farming operations are participating in FCIC's investment protection program than ever before.

Heavy crop losses are anticipated this year, particularly in north central Indiana. The actual extent of damage

Frost damages late beans

By JOHN P. GRUBER
County Extension Agent, Agriculture
Soybean harvest, the Farm Science Review, and the early frost seemed to be the main topic of discussion in Fayette County agriculture this week, and not necessarily in the order that I have them listed here.

The early frost did considerable damage to some of the late planted soybeans around the county. Especially to double crop soybeans. The strange thing about the frost is that there were varying degrees of damage around the county. As of yet I haven't seen any fields of soybeans that were completely killed by the frost, but there are many fields throughout the county that have the tops fairly well burned.

One thing the frost did was drive soybean prices up. Futures prices were up 4 days thru Thursday and as this column was being prepared on Friday morning there was every indication the market would be up Friday. The cash price crept over $8 per bushel locally this week.

It was evident that soybean harvest was going strong with the number of calls I had this week to check yields of Soybean Club Members. Combines in fields throughout the county were another indication. In general, reports are coming in the yields locally are better than expected but not up to normal. We've reports of some fields yielding over 50 bushel per acre.

It seems like there were more Fayette County farmers at the Farm Science Review than ever this year. I had a chance to visit with a lot of local folks while I was there. We sold nearly 300 tickets through the Extension Office which is more than in recent years.

CORN AND Soybean Club members are reminded that field history records are due into the Extension Office, also harvest forms must be completed at time of harvest and yields checked by myself or one of the agronomy committee members.

A NEW publication which arrived at the Extension Office this week is entitled "Guidelines for Expert Soybean Harvesting". A limited supply is available for those who would like a copy. The 12-page bulletin gives keys to efficient harvesting and discusses types of losses. Also included are guidelines for measuring harvest losses.

The main point each combine operator needs to consider right now is what can be done to minimize losses at harvest, at $8 each bushel counts up fast.

Feeder calf roundup Oct. 4-5 in Columbus

A record number of calves have been entered in the Ohio Feeder Calf Roundup to take place October 4 and 5 at the Ohio Expositions Center, Columbus. About 500 calves will be on hand for buyers at the 12 noon sale on Saturday, October 5, according to Randall Reed, Extension animal science specialist at Ohio State University and chairman of the event.

Reed recommends the roundup as a good source of calves to feed out for next year's county fairs throughout the state. A survey he conducted of last year's buyers revealed that several county fair class winners and champions came from the 1973 Roundup.

Quality is one of the reasons given for buying calves at the feeder calf roundup. Only top quality entries are encouraged, and they are graded before the sale so you can tell what you're buying. Also, says Reed, the calves are weaned, halter broken and started on feed, big plus factors for success in the feedlot.

All calves entered in the show and sale are sired by purebred beef bulls and no calves with dairy breeding are accepted. Requirements are that the calves be born after January 1 of this year and must weigh 350 to 650 pounds at the weigh-in of the show. They must be castrated, dehorned, and completely healed by show and sale date.

H.R. Purdy of Alexandria, Pa., will judge the calves this year and auc-

Opinion And Comment

Vice presidency question

The idea of eliminating the office of vice president has been kicking around for some time. It is being given fresh impetus now by the prestigious support of the distinguished historian, Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr.

More is involved, of course, than simply amending the Constitution to do away with the vice presidency. Provision would have to be made for an orderly method of filling the presidency should that office become vacant.

The proposal generally advanced — one backed by Schlesinger in a recent appearance at California State University in Long Beach — is to hold a special election in the event of a presidential vacancy. The presumption is that some high-level official — the secretary of state or the speaker of the House, say — would serve as acting president until a new chief executive was elected.

The notion of trying this approach has been given new currency by what has happened in the past year. This succession of events — the forced departure of a vice president, the appointment of a new vice president, the resignation of his choice as number two man — makes the idea of getting along without a vice president and relying on a special election more attractive than in the past.

In recent years the vice presidency has taken on more importance than before. Holders of the office have been given relatively significant assignments within the government; they have served on governmental bodies, carried out missions abroad, and so on. At best, however, the vice presidency cannot be seen as a highly important, let alone essential, office. The government would get along pretty well without it.

The main reason for having a vice president is to assure a smooth transfer of power should the office of president be vacated. Recent experience makes it evident that there are some drawbacks in this system, if only because under certain circumstances it results in placing in the White House an individual who has not been chosen by the national electorate. Eliminating the office of vice president and holding a special election to fill a White House vacancy might be the best way to get around this. It is a subject that should be thoroughly illuminated by national discussion.

Dogfighting spreads

The "sport" of pitting dogs against one another in bloody and often lethal combat is on the rise in our supposedly civilized land. This barbaric practice would be deplorable enough if it were the wan survival of a more savage time, but indications are that it is spreading. There is something nauseous about that.

There are rules in dog fighting, rules the referee follows as the animals tear at one another for the delectation of crowds which sometimes number several hundred. The rules, however, permit battles that may last as long as two hours and often result in serious maiming or death. Money rides on the fights, with some wagers of $1,000 or more on the outcome.

All of this is illegal in every one of the states. That does not stop the owners, who may train a bull terrier for two years in preparation for combat. Nor does it stop those with a taste for watching two animals claw and bite until one can no longer continue. Such exhibitions have been fairly common for a long time in North Carolina, Texas and other part of the South and Southwest. Lately dog fights have been staged in several states in the North and East.

Happily there is evidence of a rising inclination to enforce the law against this barbarity. Enforcement ought to be stepped up wherever authorities get wind of such practices. Not long ago a special law enforcement officer for the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was quoted as saying that dog fighters "tell me that dogfighting is a sport and that they love their dogs, but I think people who fight dogs are sick." We say Amen to that.

Energy regulations for buildings eyed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Board of Building Standards begins public hearings Monday on proposed regulations setting maximum allotments of energy for most new buildings in the state.

Believed to be the first of their kind in the nation, the regulations would set maximum energy allotments, expressed in BTUs per square foot, for the combined load of lighting, heating, cooling and ventilation of 63 building types.

Hershel D. Davidson, executive secretary of the board, said the regulations, in the form of an Energy Conservation Chapter to the Ohio Building Code, are an outgrowth of an energy task force appointed by Gov. John Gilligan last year.

Davidson said the regulations would "force designers to plan buildings that will make the most efficient use of the allotted energy. In the long run, the regulations will save energy and, therefore, save money."

The proposed regulations, Davidson said, not only represent the first attempt in Ohio history to address the overall energy efficiency of buildings, but also "promise to become a national model—a pioneering effort to introduce comprehensive energy performance standards into state building code."

He explained that the proposed regulations would set "performance standards" as opposed to establishing specific design requirements.

Under the regulations, builders' plans would have to show energy usage in conformity with the code before a building permit would be issued. Certified building departments and the Division of Factory and Building Inspection of the Ohio Department of Industrial Relations would inspect construction to ensure conformity, he added.

"We're doing this because there is a real energy crisis," Davidson said. "We're not talking about gasoline shortages now, we're talking about the energy that can be derived from our environment, and how to use it wisely, conservatively."

The building code contains statewide minimum standards for all buildings except conventional family dwellings and agricultural buildings.

Once considered too dry to support extensive agriculture, Nebraska in fact lies over great groundwater reserves, National Geographic says. At least 40,000 shallow wells and many storage reservoirs irrigate more than 5,000,000 acres.

Washington wins league opener, 31-13

Lions prosper on Shermans' miscues

By LARRY WATTS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

CHILLICOTHE — Taking advantage of three costly second quarter mistakes by the Shermans, Washington Court House quickly scored three touchdowns in the second frame and marched on to a 31-13 victory over Unioto.

Not only did the contest serve as the 1974 South Central Ohio League opener for both schools, but it was also the first SCOL contest for the Shermans, who joined the league last spring.

Although Washington was a heavy favorite over the Tanks, Unioto proved themselves in their debut. Despite the final score, the statistics on the game were nearly identical as the two teams were only separated by a total of 14 yards. However, the key to the Lions' victory was Unioto made the mistakes and Washington did not make any.

The Shermans first mistake occurred in the late stages of the first period. With fourth down, the Lions' Jeff Brown was forced to punt from his own 37-yard line. However, Unioto's Brian Hoops dropped the ball and Mark Lamberson recovered it for the Lions on Unioto's 27-yard line. Seven plays later, Brown romped around right end for a seven-yard touchdown run with 10:41 to play in the half. Brown hit halfback Randy Sparkman with the conversion pass.

Another miscue on a punt by Brown proved costly on Washington's next offensive possession. Brown was punting from his own 45-yard line, but a bad snap from center forced him to scamper and he collected 11 yards plus a first down on the mixup. With 4:52 remaining and six plays later, Brown tossed a 21-yard touchdown aerial to Randy Sparkman, who dove over a Unioto tackler for the touchdown. Brown connected with halfback Jim Vess for the conversion.

With time running out and trailing 16-7, the Shermans took over the ball at midfield with 34 seconds to play in the half. After working the ball up to the 27-yard line, Unioto had one second left on the clock. On the final play, Sherman quarterback Scott Daily fired a pass to the left side, but the Lions' defensive end Doug McCune intercepted the ball and raced 80 yards downfield for a touchdown. Brown ran the ball into the end zone for the conversion.

Erasing those three costly mistakes, the Shermans played a very respectable first half. In fact, Unioto could very well have taken a 7-0 lead at the half.

On their second offensive series of the game, the Lions drove 84 yards to paydirt in seven plays. Highlighting the play was a 30-yard run around right end by halfback Bob Matson and a 15-yard personal foul on the Lions. The touch-down came on a 21-yard pass from Daily to tight end Scott Brumfield, who bulldozed over two would-be Washington tacklers. Jeff Allen's kick gave the Shermans a 7-0 lead until the roof caved-in on them in the second stanza.

"We were not mentally ready to play," remarked Lion mentor Maurice Pfeifer. "Our defense was not as sharp as it has been this season. Although it looked ragged, our offense gave its best performance of the season and it was able to move the ball some tonight. However, we did not consistently control the ball."

Apparently, Unioto's first quarter touchdown woke up the Lions' defense. The Lions grudgingly allowed 55 yards on the ground for the remainder of the contest. In addition to the pass interception, Washington came up with another big play when the Shermans had a first down on the Lions' 17-yard line in the fourth quarter. Court House's defense limited Unioto to just three yards and Washington took control of the ball after holding fast at the 14-yard line.

The Shermans' offense only crossed Washington's 30-yard line four times during the game. Two of the drives resulted in touchdowns.

Each team added a touchdown in the second half. Washington tallied in the third period on a 51-yard pass from backup quarterback Greg Marti to Lamberson. Marti also kicked the extra point. Unioto's final tally came in the fourth quarter on a one-yard pass from Daily to Brumfield.

UNIOTO — Brumfield, 21 yd. pass from Daily (Allen kick); Brumfield, 1 yd. pass from Daily (conv. pass failed).

Marti played the entire second half at quarterback for the Lions. Brown injured his back when he had to scramble on the punt. Marti completed three of five passes for 63 yards.

Randy Gardner filled in for Brown in the punting department during the second half. Gardner boomed the ball four times for over a 33-yard average. Brown had four punts for nearly a 38-yard average in the first half.

"I was very impressed by Marti and Gardner in the second half," Pfeifer pointed out. "Greg did an excellent job of leading the team and Randy did a good job punting."

Washington also lost the services of Randy Sparkman for the second half. Sparkman, who has been bothered by the flu all week, was running short of breath and had to be taken to the Chillicothe Medical Center for treatment.

"I think we had Unioto scouted fairly well," Pfeifer noted. "They are big and strong, but they are also slow."

The Lions' defense held Unioto fullback Dan Anders to just 11 yards to seven carries. Matson was the leading ball carrier as he picked up 61 yards in nine carries. Roger Rutherford, the Shermans' third member of the 190-pound backfield, missed the game and will be out for the season because of a dislocated shoulder.

"They (Unioto) did surprise us by passing a lot," said Pfeifer. After throwing a total of 16 passes in the first three games, Daily uncorked 24 passes against the Lions. Many of the passes were on target, but the receivers either dropped them or were covered like a blanket by the Lions' defensive secondary.

Vess had an outstanding game in the Lions' defensive secondary. With last

Reds slide by Giants

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds prolonged the agony in the National League West Friday with a come-from-behind 4-3 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

"Well," said first baseman Tony Perez, who collected his 28th homer of the season and 99th run-batted-in, "at least the Dodgers will have to wait a day before they open their champagne."

Any combination of one Cincinnati loss or a Dodger victory will give the western division championship to Los Angeles.

It was a curve ball," said Bonds. Then the Reds bull pen went to work and shut the Giants out with Pedro Borbon, Tom Carroll and Tommy Hall.

First, Chicago Cub pitcher Tom Dettore hit Bake McBride with a pitch in the top of the fourth inning.

Then, Bob Gibson of the Cardinals plunked Pete LaCock leading off the Chicago fourth.

"It was a half-speed slider," advised St. Louis Manager Red Schoendienst, indicating an accident.

Then, Dettore clipped Lou Brock leading off the Cards' fifth.

After that, the Cardinals did most of the hitting with their bats. Joe Torre's two-run homer and Ted Simmons' two-run single gave them a 3-1 lead in the fifth and they cruised to a 10-4 victory.

Miami Trace rips Chillicothe, 22-8

By MARK REA
Record-Herald Sports Writer

Miami Trace took its third victory in four decisions on their home field Friday night as the Panthers buried the Chillicothe Cavaliers 22-8. The Panthers, stinging from last week's pasting at the hands of Jackson, really took it out on the Cavaliers, grinding out 28 yards on the ground.

The game was played in a steady downpour for a substantial part of the night as was evidenced by the turnover total in the contest. A astronomical

Perry may quit tribe

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland's Cy Young Award winner Gaylord Perry says he doesn't believe he can play with the Indians next year if Frank Robinson is named manager.

The pair almost got into a fist fight Friday night, because of the comments Perry made to the news media about the salary he would like next year.

"I told (Phil) Seghi this afternoon (Friday) that I want one dollar more than Robinson is getting in my contract next year," Perry said.

Perry is reportedly making $85,000. Robinson is reported to be making $173,000.

"If I don't get it—and I mean a dollar more than Robinson—I'll take it to arbitration," Perry continued.

"I've been around here for three years and every year they tell me they don't have the money to pay me more," Perry said. "Well, I must look like a fool. They got enough money to buy guys like (Rico) Carty (Tom McCraw and then Robinson. They must have the money somewhere."

Take Five winner

LEBANON, Ohio (AP)—Take Five went off at 5-2 and led all the way to win the featured mile trot at Lebanon Raceway Friday night in 2:11.3-5 and paid $7.80, $4.20 and $3.20.

Chief Dean placed, $5.48 and $4.80 and Moonlight Music, the show horse, $7.

number of 10 fumbles, five break team, were coughed up during the game. The Panthers also intercepted a Cavalier pass.

Trace topped Chillicothe in every statistic except the passing department. The Cavalier quarterback duo of Randy Lewis and Jeff Price combined to complete seven of 15 passes for 70 yards.

The Panthers also had a pair of signal callers. Senior Tom Riley and freshman Art Schlichter teamed up to connect on one of three attempts for 20 yards.

There was some concern before the game about how much the loss of senior halfback Tom Pfaff would hinder the Panther running attack. Those concerns, however, were never needed as the Miami Trace attack turned to the power running of Riley and Jeff Sagar. Riley, dividing duties between quarterback and fullback, carried the ball 18 times and gained a total of 93 yards rushing. Sagar, the team's leading rusher, churned out 121 yards in 21 carries.

In addition to Riley and Sagar, the Panthers had five other runners carry the ball en route to their 287 rushing yards. Cavalier runner Kirk Hitchens was held to only 56 yards rushing, while the Panthers' defense allowed only 76 rushing yards the entire game.

Punts were almost forgotten in this game as only two punts and two quick kicks were made. The two punts belonged to Riley while the quick kicks (kicks on third down and long yardage plays) were tried by Scott Brown of Chillicothe.

On the defensive side of the Panther ledger, stellar performances were given by Greg Cobb, Don Dunton and Phil Skinner. Cobb and Dunton recovered Cavalier fumbles while Skinner intercepted a pass. Also on defense, Ron Warnock, Jay Mossbarger, Jeff Smithson, Cobb and Riley all had over five tackles each.

Miami Trace drew first blood in the opening quarter. With Chillicothe's Lewis in punt formation, the center threw the snap over his head into the end zone. Lewis then fell on it as Cobb and Mossbarger pounced on him for a safety making it 16-0 at halftime.

In the second quarter, the Panthers were rolling again with a four-play, 46-yard drive. Sagar carried the ball each time and scored the touchdown from 18 yards out with 10:56 remaining in the first half. The conversion pass attempt failed, making the score 8-0.

One minute later, the Panthers had the ball again by virtue of another Cavalier fumble. This time, Riley did the work and eventually scored from the eight-yard-line. He also ran for the extra points, making it 16-0 at halftime.

From the second half kickoff, it was the Cavaliers turn to strike paydirt. Miami Trace intercepted the ball on the ten-yard line, only to be called back for an interference penalty. One play later, a halfback option pass from Price to John Herrnstein for 20 yards put six points on the Chillicothe side of the scoreboard. The same Price-Herrnstein hookup was used on the conversion to make the score close at 16-8.

Trace put an end to the scoring for the night with a 20-yard scoring strike from Schlichter to Smithson with 2:46 remaining in the third quarter. It was Schlichter's first touchdown pass of his varsity career.

Both teams put together long sustained drives in the fourth quarter but neither could score. The game ended with Trace on the verge of a another touchdown.

The penalty flag was also a big factor in the game as both teams totalled 15 penalties. Trace was assessed 75 yards on nine penalties and Chillicothe lost 66 yards on six infractions.

Next week, the South Central Ohio League race begins for the Panthers as they host Hillsboro. A week from then, Miami Trace will travel to Circleville to meet the Tigers in another SCOL match.

Breast Cancer: New Techniques

Mammography and thermography are two techniques for the early detection of cancer of the breast. Mammography, especially, has been responsible for the tremendous increase in the number of successful cures of this type of cancer.

Dr. Philip Strax, head of the Guttmann Institute in New York City, believes that the strides in mammography stand out as one of man's greatest scientific accomplishments in the past two decades.

These X-rays are able to outline soft tissue masses and differentiate cancerous (malignant) from non-cancerous (benign) tumors of the breast.

Many women have been spared surgery because of the definitiveness with which many of these X-rays can be read by mammography specialists.

Thermography is a technique that enhances diagnostic accuracy by measuring temperature variations in all parts of a breast suspected of being cancerous.

With electronic temperature devices, skin surfaces are measured, recorded and photographed.

The validity of thermography is based on the knowledge that

No injuries were reported in a three-car accident at the intersection of Court and North streets Friday afternoon.

Sandra L. Baker, 21, of 300 N. Fayette St., was making a left turn from North Street onto Court Street when she pulled in front of a car driven by Jimmie L. Moore, 37, of Mount Sterling. The two collided, and the Baker auto then struck a car driven by Charles F. Yahn, 32, of 818 Rawlings St., which had stopped on Court Street for the red light. Claim airport safety flaws grow worse

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Airports are less safe than the public might realize, the head of the Aviation Safety Institute said Friday.

John B. Galipault, president of the Ohio-based organization, said a five-month institute survey completed in July shows "a significant number of nearmisses, system errors and system deviations were reported from facilities with high air traffic volume."

The survey indicates that the "capabilities of air traffic control may have been oversold" and has "serious imperfections and limitations," said Galipault, himself a pilot with some 7,000 hours of flight time.

"Some air traffic experts contend that there are 900 to 1,000 unsafe acts or conditions per day within the air traffic control system alone," he said.

But many of these are never reported, he said.

"We know that there are problems within Port Columbus' terminal air space," Galipault said, "but no reports

Packer hit by complaint

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture said today an Ohio livestock dealer has been charged with violating financial requirements of the Packers and Stockyards Act.

The administrative complaint was brought against Dennis Norman Filz, owner-manager of Filz Rancho, Inc., of Greenville, by the USDA's Packers and Stockyards Administration.

Specifically, the complaint charges that Filz operated as a livestock dealer during January 1974 while his liabilities exceeded his assets and had control of his company when it failed to pay for more than $18,000 worth of livestock.

The Packers and Stockyards Act requires livestock dealers to make prompt payment for livestock unless credit has been arranged in advance and to maintain a solvent financial situation.
